

IT'S TRUE, I THINK I'M GREEN

What's true for me? I see the world as a fascinating place. One that I am driven to understand. That's how I control it. I love to gain knowledge, but I must be free to use it. I like to do lots of things, but I will rarely take on anything until I feel I am going to look competent at it because one of my greatest vulnerabilities is to be made a fool of. I may often seem to be distant or cold, but I'm really not – I just don't like illogical thinking. I hate repetition and I do enjoy my own company. I really care about the world and one of my fantasies is to use all the knowledge I have and maybe a little magic to make it a better place for everyone. It's not surprising that all people from outer space are GREEN.

I wonder why?